Mrs. Capelouto

Funeral services for Barbara Maxine Capelouto, 2901 W. 234th St., will be conducted at 2 p.m. Tuesday at the Stone and Myers Mortuary Chapel with the Rev. L. Wayne Jenkins of the Nazarene Church of Hawthorne officiating. Burial will be in Inglewood Park Cemetery.

Mrs. Capelouto, who died Friday, was 30. She had been employed as a secretary for the Hughes Aircraft Co. for about six years.

Surviving Mrs. Capelouto are her husband, David; a daughter, Dana Lynn; a son, David Anthony; her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Rycraft of Hawthorne, and a brother, Jerry Rycraft of Hawthorne.

Code

Others, however, said state and federal law provides ample protection to homeowners.

When Uerkwitz called for a vote, Assistant City Manager Jerome I. Scharfman warned the committee it was "voting on the urban renewal project." He said a delay in enforcing the housing code pending an amendment "could delay the (Urban Renewal) project six months."

THE HOUSING code, adopted in connection with more than 1,000 federal projects under way throughout the country, R. A. Wheeler, assistant executive director of the city's Redevelopment Agency, told the committee. The enforcement provision of the code, Scharfman added, is identical to the enforcement provisions of the city's building, fire prevention, zoning, and health and safety codes. In some instances, he said, the city has been enforcing codes in the same manner for as much as 30 years.

THE COMMITTEE selected the North Torrance area to begin enforcement by a 15-4 vote after a motion to table the matter failed on a 6-9 vote.

City inspectors will begin work in the neighborhood only after residents are told the purpose of the program, the committee was told. Chief reason for the program is to prevent neighborhoods in the city from deteriorating into blighted areas by enforcing minimum standards.

Scharfman said a home built in 1950, for instance, would be required to meet minimum standards then in effect, not the standards set by the 1966 building code.

Enforcement of the housing code in the North Torrance area will begin before the end of the year, if the committee's action is given final approval by the council.

Roy Gerson Will Head New Group

Roy Gerson has been named president of the newly formed Palo Del Amo Woods Homeowners' Association, following a meeting of the group's council.

"The enthusiastic response given to our initial efforts, the flood of telephone calls, and the tremendous amount already accomplished by volunteers indicates we are going to have 100 per cent participation in our community," Gerson said.

The council also named several committee chairmen. They include David Adley, membership; Mrs. Irene Gerson, telephone, and Mrs. Ginger Friedman, public relations.

Representatives of the four units now occupied include Mrs. Carol Greenberg, Unit 1; Mrs. Patti Chikahisa, Unit 2; Mrs. Kathy Picarello, Unit 3; and Mrs. Arlene Kardell, Unit 4. Jack Burrell, Luchy Rotell, and Bert Ashe were selected to serve with the officers and committee chairmen on the constitution committee.

Pickpocket Gets Cash From Man

Burglars and a pickpocket got away with more than $3,500 in goods and cash in three incidents reported to Torrance police Wednesday.

The pickpocket got $596 in cash from Leonard Frojd Sr., 50, of 826 N. Juanita Ave. Frojd said he was standing in line at a Torrance supermarket when a youth bumped into him.

He told officers he missed his wallet when he got home. The youth, he said, was about 14 years old and had blond hair.

Largest loss was reported by Orum J. Newell, owner of the Cal Newell Co. at 2319 Arlington Ave. More than $1,900 worth of dry cell batteries were taken from a storage shed, Newell reported.

About 160 batteries were taken, Newell told officers the thieves probably used a truck. Police found no evidence of forced entry.

A third major theft was reported by Ted Green Chevrolet, 23505 Hawthorne Blvd. A spokesman said tires, batteries, and miscellaneous tools were taken. The items have a value of $1,100, it was reported.

New Class Offered At L.A. Harbor

An evening orchestra class will be offered in the fall semester at Los Angeles Harbor College, according to Daniel R. Remeta, orchestra conductor.

The class will meet from 6:30 to 9:30 in the Seahawk Center and is open to anyone having proficiency on an instrument. String and double reed players are especially needed, Remeta stated.

Purpose of the orchestra is not to compete with community orchestras but to offer an opportunity for interested musicians to rehearse and play music from various periods without the pressure of monthly performances.

All evening courses are tuition free to California residents who are high school graduates or at least 18 years of age. Deadline for filing a request for a permit to register at the admissions office of the college is Wednesday. Office hours for registration are 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Monday through Friday and 6 to 8 p.m. Monday through Thursday.

Deadline Set for Contest

Artists and designers are reminded today that Monday, Sept. 12, is the deadline for entries in the Christmas Seal design competition.

J. Chris Smith, chairman of the contest co-sponsored by four tuberculosis associations and KMPC radio, said a $200 cash prize awaits the Los Angeles area winner. Top money for the nationwide winner is $1,000.

According to Smith, entries should be sent to KMPC radio, the Los Angeles TB Association, 1870 Beverly Blvd., or the Long Beach T. B. Association, 1002 Pacific Ave.

Following local judging and display, entries will be forwarded to New York for the national competition.

Gardena Registration Drive Picnic Slated

Gardena's fifth annual "Safe and Sane" Labor Day picnic, sponsored by the Gardena Valley Knights of Columbus and the city's Parks and Recreation Department, will get underway at 11 a.m. tomorrow.

The picnic, which will feature a variety of family games and contests, will be held at Recreation Park, 158th Street and Normandie Avenue.

Contests will include a greased pole climb with $2 bills waiting for those who make it to the top, a watermelon eating contest, a rolling pin toss, a potato race, and other old-fashioned family picnic events.

Game booths and hot dogs, soft drink, and ice cream booths will be operated by the Knights of Columbus.

Awards and prizes will be presented at 4:30 p.m. Families may bring picnic lunches or depend on the hot dog and soft drink concessions.

Serra High Meeting for Parents Set

Parents of students who will be freshmen at Serra High School this fall will meet Tuesday evening in the school auditorium for an orientation program.

Parents of sophomores, juniors, and seniors will meet Wednesday. Both sessions are scheduled at 7:30.

A dance for all parents will be held at the school Saturday under the sponsorship of the Mothers' Club.

Joslyn Center Plans Varied Fall Program

With autumn fast approaching, plans are being made for fall and winter activities at the Joslyn Recreation Center, focal point of the Torrance Recreation Department's social and cultural programs.

Registration for some 40 fall programs will begin Tuesday at the center, 3335 Torrance Blvd.

Something for everyone is the theme of the fall program. Activities will range from jewelry-making to sculpture to handicraft programs. Several "one-shot" programs also are planned.

A SEPTEMBER highlight will be the Theater Bus Trip to the Duke Ellington - Ella Fitzgerald concert at the Greek Theatre. "Travel" will be the theme of a Friday night film and lecture series.

Adults may register for the Joslyn Studio of Arts classes in creative stitching, watercolor, drawing, jewelry, oil painting, ceramics, and sculpture. A class in textile design will be offered for the first time this fall. The course will emphasize silk screening, block printing, and Christmas card designing and printing.

Children from 6 to 10 may utilize their summer sandcastle-building experience as they explore sculpture in the fine arts and crafts Saturdays at the Joslyn Studio.

LITTLE GIRLS with dreams of becoming a dancer may want to begin learning the creative use of dance movement in youth modern dance.

Teenagers may enroll in a Tuesday evening teen-crafts class, where they may choose projects such as ceramics, sculpture, or papier mache. Music, from Beatlemania to the Blues, is also included in the program for teenagers. Basic strums of popular folk music will be taught in the teenage guitar class, while auditions will be held Sept. 17 for the "Imperials," dance band which plays modern jazz, standard show tunes, and popular music.

JAZZ DANCE techniques will be taught, especially for the 13-19 age group, in a new modern jazz class for teenagers on Saturdays.

Co-Rec activities are also geared for teenagers in seventh and eighth grade. Weekend activities throughout the winter will include supervised parties, a snow trip, and varied service activities.

Housewives, too, are included in the social and cultural program. Those with "musically inclined" children who have adopted the "if-you-can't-lick-them, join-them" philosophy may be interested in the housewives folk guitar class each Wednesday morning.

BOTH A JAZZ and modern dance class are also offered for homemakers.

For the tiniest tots, a creative play and discovery period for the "Three-to-Five-Set" will concentrate on stories, games, music, and art, while mother participates in weekday morning classes.

Senior Citizens also are included in the activities. A senior citizens' workshop will be held Friday mornings and on Friday afternoons, the center's facilities will be open to the "Joslyn-Active-Over-50s" for card playing, pot-luck luncheons, and dancing. A social dance class, specializing in basic ballroom steps as well as the popular new dances, is planned for adults and persons interested in folk dancing may join the square dance class of the South Bay Folk Dancers, a charter club of the Recreation Department.

MUSIC ACTIVITIES for adults will include a guitar class Thursday evening, and the Joslyn Community Chorus, which rehearses show tunes, folk music, and classical choral music.

Can you picture yourself as Errol Flynn? A Fencing Club meets at the Center each Wednesday night.

Drama prone? The Footlight Theater is now rehearsing a melodrama called "Gold in the Hills."

What ever your particular interest you may be sure that the instructor is well-schooled in the area he is teaching. All instructors at Joslyn are specialists in their field. Guest instructors include Dr. Howard Hitchcock, May Jane LeLand, Peter Mays, and Marion Cummings.

County Report Lists Gonorrhea

Eleven cases of gonorrhea and four cases of measles topped the list of notifiable diseases in Torrance for the week ending Aug. 6, the County Health Department reports.

Also reported were two cases of syphilis, two cases of hepatitis, and one case each of epilepsy and epidemiological gonorrhea.
